Statistics and Valuable Local
Information—Interesting Papers
by Many New Writers.

The twenty-eight annual issue of Thurm's Annual has just appeared from the press. The issue of 1902 follows the lines of previous issues, including in its pages much valuable statistics and entertaining historical and scientific matter.

Among the principle articles in the issue are a history of the firm of Hackfeld & Co., a "Complete List of the Birds of the Hawaiian Possessions, with notes on their habits," by H. W. Henshaw, and "Collection of Algae from the Hawaiian Islands," by Miss Josephine E. Tilen, a young lady from the University of Minnesota, who made a trip to these islands in the interest of the scientific department of that university during the past year.

T. F. Sedgwick of the Agricultural Experiment Station, has written a paper on "Organization for the Promotion of Agriculture in the Hawaiian Islands," accompanied by an outline of the plans and scope of the Hawaii Experiment Station, by Dr. Jared Smith, Dr. U. B. Emerson gives translations of the traditions of "Alai, Son of Kula, the Fish God of Hawaii," A. S. Cleghorn has written a paper on "Club Life in Honolulu," W. R. Farrington has written on "Wireless Telegraphy Established in Hawaii," and W. E. Pinkham on "New Era of Building in Honolulu."

RUNAWAYS AND WRECKAGE.

Lower Business Thoroughfares Proved a Difficult Course for Frisky Equines

Yesterday did not pass without the usual quota of runaways. The corner of Fort and Queen streets seemed to be a difficult course for frisky equines. One of Theo. H. Davies & Co.'s wagons created havoc along Bethel street shortly after 9 o'clock. The horse started for the main store on Queen street and in doing so ran amuck one of the Pain tram cars standing at the switch. The vehicle struck the car end on, and lost two wheels in the collision. The thoroughly frightened animal then ran up Nuuanu and turned into King. Going up Bethel street, the animal struck into Hotel and then down Fort. It was stopped out on King street.

Samuel Henry, one of the contractors having the Pearl Harbor dredging in charge, was mixed up in a collision on Fort street, near the Wilder Steam ship office yesterday morning. A soda water delivery wagon coming down the business thoroughfare at a fast clip made a sudden connection with the hub of Contractor Henry's rig, completely upsetting the vehicle and spilling out the occupant. Order was finally restored without much damage being done.

ANTLERS FOR BALDWIN.

Honolulu Lodge of Elks Puts a Well Known Man Through Traces.

A new pair of antlers was noted in the assemblage within the Elks corral, located at the corner of Miller and Beretania streets yesterday evening. The graceful headgear belonged to W. A. Baldwin, the well known plantation manager from Kauai.

Mr. Baldwin came from the quiet of the Garden Isle to the mad whirl of the metropolis in order to join forces with the Benevolent and Protective Lodge of Elks in this city. His initiation into the mysteries surrounding the local herd was attended with the usual celebration.

From the piney woods of northern Maine came the graceful antlers which were intended to adorn the latest acquisition. Mr. Baldwin is now a full-fledged Elk, and will make a most agreeable addition to the rapidly increasing herd of the Best People on Earth.

The initiation was followed by a brief social session.

DR. MCGREW'S BIRTHDAY.

American Citizen Who Has Reached the Four Score Mark.

Yesterday was the 80th birthday of Dr. John S. McGrew, one of the oldest and most respected kamaainas of this city. During the day a number of friends and relatives of the doctor dropped in to pay their respects to the hale old gentleman whose 80 years sit so lightly on his shoulders that it is expected he will live to see another score of birthdays. At 9 in the morning Captain Berger and the band serenaded the doctor, taking him quite by surprise. The following selections were given:

"Old Hundred."
Overture, "Poet and Peasant," Suppe
Intermezzo, "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni
Ballad, "The Holy City," Adams
Chorus, "Tannhauser," Wagner
Selection, "American Melodies," Conterno
March, "The Invincible Eagle," Souza
"Aloha Oe," "Hawaii Ponoi,"
"The Star Spangled Banner."

WAS IT SUICIDE?

Mail brought by the Hancock contained advices to the effect that Jas. R. Doolittle, who some months ago was employed on the local press, had committed suicide at Denver, Colo. The news is not confirmed, it being mainly a rumor from San Francisco press circles. The report came by the Alameda that Doolittle had died at the Colorado capital from quick consumption, and this report also lacked confirmation. Press dispatches and the local papers from Denver have not made mention of the affair, hence Mr. Doolittle's friends in Honolulu are loth to take any stock in the stories set afloat in San Francisco.
